To Our Fellow Citizens of California and Visitors to the Golden Gate:—

WITH the stage set, ready for the ushering in of California's Diamond Jubilee, those citizens of San Francisco appointed by the Honorable James Rolph, Jr., Mayor of San Francisco, to carry out a fitting commemoration of California's Seventy-fifth Birthday in the Statehood of the Union, commend their finished work to your consideration.

The thousands who have rallied to the Mayor's call in the furtherance of these duties have had in mind the importance of the event we celebrate and the position California has attained in our sisterhood of states and in the eyes of the whole world. It has been our care, in the presentations enumerated in this Official Souvenir Program, to adhere to what is authentic and of historical interest. We have not attempted to embellish in any manner, but to present, whether in simplicity or pomp, the pictures in the story of California exactly as our treasured pages of history portray them.

In extending thanks to my co-workers—the chairmen and members of our many Committees, the staffs of capable and industrious subordinates under the administration of the Citizens' Committee—I would not omit mention of our warm appreciation for the generous subscriptions received from citizens in all professions, callings and trades which go to make up the splendid citizenship of San Francisco. All have responded nobly to the calls of our Finance Committee, and to them a great measure of the successful raising of our Jubilee structure belongs.

To the many counties, cities and civic organizations that have lovingly presented beautiful pictures in the story of California's achievements, like thanks go with our warmest appreciation. A mention of the names of those who have unstintedly assisted in the carrying out of these truly patriotic plans in paying a just tribute to the Golden State is not permitted within this limited space. I would, however, render most heartfelt thanks to our President, California's Congressional Delegation, the Press of the Pacific Coast, the Governor and scores of public officials who have never been too busy to answer our call for co-operation.

You are to be our judges as to the fidelity with which we have prepared this observance of a great day in the history of the United States when California, due to the discovery of gold within her border, came into the sisterhood of the Union and by the rapid development of her wonderful resources, stimulated the population and growth of the entire West. We trust that your verdict will be "Well done, good and faithful servant." Should that be the happy issue of our labors, we shall lay them down with profound thanks for the opportunity to serve.

Important Periods in California's History as Depicted in Parade and Pageant

By Lewis F. Byington, Past Grand President, N. S. G. W., and Chairman General Program, Scope and Budget Committee, California's Diamond Jubilee.

THE parade and pageant which will pass along the streets of San Francisco on Admission Day, September 9, 1925, the day of California's Diamond Jubilee, will, through the medium of floats and the costumes of those who accompany the floats, depict the colorful periods in the history of California. Let us, therefore, briefly, describe those periods.

1. Derivation of the Name "California." Legendary Period. In the Spanish romance known as "Las Sergas de Esplandian" (the Deeds of Esplandian), written by Montalvo and published about 1498, shortly after Columbus discovered America, the author tells of an island "lying at the right hand" as you sail toward the Indies, and near the Terrestrial Paradise, named "California." "The island everywhere abounds with gold and precious stones." It was inhabited exclusively by women who lived in the manner of Amazons. "They were robust of body, with strong and passionate hearts and great virtues." "There ruled over the island of California a queen of majestic proportions, and in the very vigor of her womanhood." Her name was Califia; she was a great warrier and her armor and weapons were all of gold and adorned with precious stones. Cortez, when he discovered Lower California, in 1535, thought it was an island, and believed that it lay "at the right hand of the Indies," and it was quite natural that he should give it the name of the mythical island "California," referred to in the popular romance of that day.

2. The Indian Period. The prehistoric settlers of California were the Indians who for centuries prior to the voyage of Columbus to the west in search of the Indies had their homes along this coast. Whether they came from Asia by way of the Aleutian islands and Alaska, or from the Pacific isles, or across some prehistoric continent lying where the Pacific now stretches, neither tradition nor history informs us.

Before the padres came, the trees and the brush were their only shelter, save in the case of a tribe along the Santa Barbara channel, more civilized than the others, and who lived in thatched huts. Their raiment was an apron of tule grass, their faces, necks and breasts were tattooed, and the only art they practiced was weaving baskets.

It was the missionary fathers who afterwards taught these rude tribes the art of peace, gathered them in settlements, trained them to sing and play on musical instruments, to cultivate the fields and tend the herds, and to build from adobe bricks and timbers the twenty-one beautiful missions which stretched from San Diego to Sonoma.

3. The Navigators. The foot of no white man pressed the soil of California until the arrival of the navigators.

California, in the days of the early navigators, was the most distant land on earth from the centre of white civilization. To reach it from Europe required a hazardous voyage around South America, or a much longer voyage around Africa and beyond Asia. Little can we appreciate today the daring and hardihood of those adventurous navigators who sailed their small wooden boats over unknown seas.

As one writer expressed it: "They were true pioneers. They gambled with luck. Life to them was a glorious adventure. And all the suffering, the thirst and the hunger and the pain, were forgotten when their eyes beheld the dim outline of a new coast or the placid waters of an ocean that had lain forgotten since the beginning of time."

One of the bold navigators of that early day was Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, a Portuguese sailing under the flag of Spain, who in 1542, just fifty years after Columbus had sighted the New World, braved the dangers of an uncharted sea and sailed up the coast of California. He was searching for a waterway that would shorten the sailing distance from Spain to India. What he found was the wonderland of California. He entered the port of San Diego, and he and his crew were the first white men to land on our coast. He passed the bay, afterwards known as San Francisco, but did not see it.

A third of a century later, 1579, the intrepid Englishman, Sir Francis Drake, sailed the "Golden Hind" into the waters of the great Pacific and found his way to the California coast. He named the land New Albion and claimed it for Queen Elizabeth. All that now remains to commemorate that eventful voyage are Drake's Bay to the north of San Francisco and the Prayer Book Cross in Golden Gate Park. Although the navigator Cabrillo sailed past the Golden Gate in 1542, it was not until 233 years later that the first vessel entered the port. All others passed without noticing it. In 1775, Juan Manuel Ayala, lieutenant in the Spanish navy, was commanded to sail from Mexico and explore San Francisco Bay, which prior thereto had been seen only from the land. On the evening of August 5, 1775, 150 years ago, Ayala, on his ship, the "San Carlos," entered through the Golden Gate. His vessel was the first to enter this harbor and open it to the commerce of the world.

4. The Mission Period. No military conquest marked the acquisition of California by Spain. In this respect California stands unique among lands taken from native tribes. The Spaniards came, not with the sword, but with the prayer-book and the cross. The California Missions brought the native tribes from barbarism to civilization peacefully and without bloodshed.

In 1769, while yet the American colonies on the Atlantic were a part of Great Britain, Gaspar de Portola, the brave and able governor of Lower California, led the pioneer expedition into the land that is now our Golden State. He planted the banner of Castile and Leon on the crescent shore or the harbor of Monterey, established the military posts, the Presidios, and discovered the world-famed San Francisco Bay.

While Portola represented the military arm of Spain, the zealous and saintly Junipero Serra, who accompanied him, was the civilizing influence that established permanent settlements here and paved the way for the future growth of California. With never ending patience, unabating zeal, and ceaseless effort, he planted Mission after Mission along the coast of California from San Diego to San Francisco, linked them together by El Camino Real, the king's highway, and brought within their spiritual influence the heathen natives of this western land. The Missions which remain of the twenty-one stretching from San Diego to Sonoma should be preserved and treasured as landmarks representative of the earliest civilization brought to this coast. To Portola and Serra California owes a debt of everlasting gratitude.

Bells of the Past, whose long forgotten music
Still fills the wide expanse,
Tingeing the sober twilight of the Present
With color of romance!

* * * *

Before me rise the dome-shaped Mission towers,
The white Presidio;
The swart commander in his leathern jerkin,
The priest in stole of snow.

5. The Spanish Period. It may be said that California owes its foundation to the Spanish era. It was during that period that it had its boundaries defined, its harbors explored and surveyed and its civilization established; the sweet-sounding names given to its mountains, its rivers and towns, come from Spain. The period following the arrival of the Spaniard was a period of romance filled with the spirit of a care-free people. They had here a land of scenic beauty and enchanting climate, a land gorgeous with flowers and rich with plenty, where lived a happy, peaceful and contented race, "the world forgetting and by the world forgot," where news from other lands came at rare intervals, where there were no railroads, no telephone or printing presses, where the people lived and loved and were content, knowing little and caring less about the people of other lands; a land of vast and rich estates over whose hills and valleys roamed a thousand fattening herds and flocks; where men were brave and courteous and women fair and fascinating; where outdoor festivals held sway and song and dancing marked the passing hours; where the sweet voice of the guitar, touched by a lovelorn cavalier, floated nightly toward the latticed window of a charming dark-eyed senorita; where the most daring and skilled horsemen of the world bestrode spirited steeds with saddle and bridle ornamented with gold and silver; where nature smiled and gave abundantly with little toil; where mission bells chimed out the hours and called a devout people to their pious devotions; where there was no hurry, no envy, no hate. If you had neither horse, nor land of your own, it was no cause for distress, you had but to stop at the first door, ask for food and shelter, and the owner would greet you with gentle courtesy and with gracious bow say: "Enter, it is your house." Such a land was Spanish, romantic, California.

6. Trapper and Explorer Period. The romantic period in the history of California might be considered the years from 1782 to 1820, when Spain ruled the land.

In the years which followed, the adventurous American explorers and trappers crossed the Allegheny mountains, pressed on beyond the Ohio and Mississippi, and turned their faces to the still more distant West. The restless spirit of the American frontiersman urged him ever onward to new adventures and dangers. Jedidah Smith, the first white man to cross the continent to California, came by way of Salt Lake and the Colorado River and reached San Diego in 1826. Within a short time, he was followed over the southern route by Sylvester and James O. Pattie, and the historic scout Kit Carson, who, about 1828, trapped beavers along the San Joaquin and Sacramento rivers. They were followed by hundreds of other daring Americans, who came across the deserts, over the mountains and by sea, prior to 1846. Among these were General John A. Sutter, Colonel John C. Fremont, John Bidwell and others. The message of the fruitfulness of California's soil and her

Artists and decorators have labored ceaselessly several weeks on the production of more than forty magnificent floats picturing the energies of Labor in the various crafts, its history and triumphs.

California's Diamond Jubilee Citizens' Committee, under authority of the citizens of San Francisco, have presented this parade with a title float of great beauty, setting forth allegorically the symbols of Labor and the gigantic task it undertakes in the upbuilding of modern civilization.

The parade will number not less than 50,000 marchers in line, and in this huge outpouring will be found representations of Labor from all parts of California.

7. Bear Flag and American Flag Raising. Even before the discovery of gold in California, many Americans had come to this Coast. Some on trading ships around the Horn, and others as explorers in search of adventure crossed the plains and mountains to the east of us. From whatsoever land they came, they were charmed with California and determined to live their days here. The hope was in their hearts that some day it would become a part of the Union. It was then a province of the Republic of Mexico, but many of the people were not satisfied with governmental conditions. English war vessels hovered along the coast, and also ships from other lands, manned by those who looked covetously on this territory.

Don Jose Castro, commandante general of the Mexican troops, was jealous and distrustful of the American. The most effective military garrison in California was at the town of Sonoma, in the Valley of the Moon, commanded by General Vallejo. Rumors reached the Americans that General Castro had ordered their expulsion from California, and they were determined not to leave. On the morning of June 14, 1846, a party of Americans consisting of 24 men, led by Captain Ezekiel Merritt, captured the Mexican garrison at Sonoma and announced the establishment of "an independent government based on Republican principles." They were not authorized to raise the Stars and Stripes so they improvised a flag of red and white cloth, with a grizzly bear and a star painted thereon, and with the words "California Republic" written across the flag.

Thus was established the California Republic, by the Bear Flag Party.

About this time Commodore John Drake Sloat was in command of the U. S. Ship Savannah in the Pacific. He carried orders from Washington to capture all California ports in the event of war between the United States and Mexico. Word reached him of the declaration of war and he at once set sail for Monterey, and on the 7th day of July, 1846, landed 250 American marines and raised the Stars and Stripes over the Custom House. On July 9, 1846, Captain Montgomery, of the U. S. Ship Portsmouth, then anchored in San Francisco Bay, raised the flag over the public Plaza, around which had grown up the small Spanish settlement then called Yerba Buena, the name of which was soon after changed to San Francisco. In honor of Captain Montgomery, the street then running along the water front was thereafter called Montgomery Street, and the Plaza was called Portsmouth to commemorate his ship. From San Francisco, Lieutenant Revere carried the American Flag to Sonoma and it there replaced the Bear Flag, being greeted with the loyal cheers of the Bear Flag Party.

The Bear Flag, now the State Flag of California, is preserved as an historic emblem.

8. The Period of Gold Discovery. There is no more important date in the history of California than January 24, 1848, which marks the discovery of gold by Jas. W. Marshall, an event "which set the whole civilized world on fire with excitement." Marshall was employed by General John A. Sutter, of Sutter's Fort, at Sacramento, to erect a sawmill on the South Fork of the American River near what is now Coloma. The mill-race had been built and the water turned in to carry the loose dirt away and the water then shut off, leaving the bed-rock exposed. As Marshall walked along the mill-race in the morning, he noticed some bright golden particles lying upon the rock. As he picked them up, his heart leaped with excitement at the thought that they might be gold. That they were gold was quickly verified.

To every farm, mill workshop and city of America, to every region of the whole world, the news of the discovery of gold in California spread. The Argonauts came by land and sea and over desert and mountain. No such days as these were ever known before, nor shall the like of them be known again. The railroad, the fast steamers, the automobile and aeroplane, would today take away the spirit of romance that clusters around the ox team and the long trains of emigrants crossing the plains. Combinations of capital and syndicates would today acquire the properties and work the mines.

In the "days of '49" the brave, the dauntless, the men of great hope and vision, with strong arm and clear head, relying upon individual exertion and native ability to conquer all hardships and dangers and build a nation, came here from every land. No such men as the Pioneers of California will appear upon the stage again. And side by side with the men of those days stood the Pioneer Mother, facing the perils of the forest, the heat of the desert, the snows of the mountain, and the untold perils and tribulations by land and sea. Truly may it be said, "God sifted a whole nation to send seed over here into the wilderness."

9. Agriculture and Commerce. It is said that California has twenty million acres of irrigable land. In early days much of her area was made up of vast ranches, over which immense herds and droves of cattle and sheep ranged. With the coming of the American, the plow was set to the broad fields of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys and thousands of acres of wheat and barley ripened and made the plains golden in the summer time.

These crops were, however, uncertain, depending upon the fall of rain in the wet season. No other state, however, had as great an available supply of water for irrigation purposes as had California. It needed but to be stored in the mountains and the supply drawn upon as required, both for irrigation and electric power purposes. The engineering skill of America was called into action, vast storage reservoirs were built, and immense irrigation systems constructed. At the touch of living water, deserts blossomed. Someone once said, "God has made California without a flaw except for its lack of water." This can no longer be said.

Valleys, once deserts, now smile with untold wealth. The orange groves of the South and North, the splendid orchards of all our valleys, the broad fields of alfalfa, the dairy farms on every hand, have sprung into being within the last few years from the life-giving waters of our mountains, and not millions, but hundreds of millions of dollars have been poured into the channels of trade from the farms of California. Power enough to turn all the wheels of the myriad industries of the nation are stored in the snows and waters of the Sierras, and One Billion Eight Hundred Million Dollars in Gold has come from our mines. California's oil fields add $275,000,000 annually to the wealth of the nation.

With the growth of agriculture, mining and manufacturing, commerce has kept pace. San Francisco has been called the port of all flags, and the merchant marine of San Francisco now finds its flags in every port all around the world. Agriculture and manufacturing are the handmaids of Commerce and Trade, and untold wealth and unlimited electric power are to be found in our mountains. Within the manufacturing districts of San Francisco and Los Angeles $2,200,000,000 worth of goods was produced in 1923. The foreign commerce of San Francisco, amounting to $327,000,000 in 1923, increased 400 per cent since 1910, while the total value of cargoes shipped from this port in that year amounted to the stupendous sum of $2,240,000,000.

California is indeed the Golden Land of Promise, no other land equals it in beauty, fertility or potential wealth; it is truly the fairest jewel in the diadem of the greatest nation of the world.

PRIZE POEM

In response to the announcement of the award of a diamond-studded medal for the best poem picturing the romantic history, lure and beauty of California, over 300 poems were received, coming from all parts of the state. The judges' awarded the prize to Joseph Barnett of Livingston, with honorable mention to Miss Isabel Wilkie of California.

CALIFORNIA

By Joseph Barnett

Livingston, Calif.

Domain where nature's fairest face
Reflects the charm of morning's glance,
Its rivalry of strength and grace
The mirrored soul of all romance.

Adventure's most alluring name,
The best beloved of fortune's quest,
A world frontier whose beacon flame
Lights all the highway of the West.

Its winnowed wealth, its treasure trove,
The ages' hoards, for him who dares;
The teeming fruits of field and grove
Awaiting him who plants and cares.

Where yesterday the herald bells
Awaked a distant, dreaming land,
Its commerce throbs and culture dwells,
Its orchards bloom and cities stand.

The State whose buoyant life looks on
To farther fields and ocean ways
And sees beyond tomorrow's dawn
The shining sails of future days.

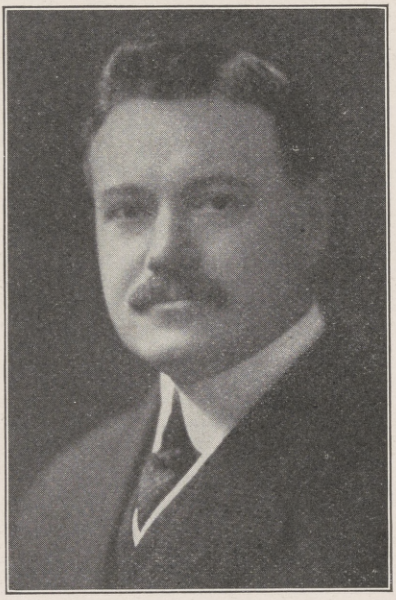
Lighting and Decorations



D'Arcy Ryan

THE scheme for lighting and decorations for California's Diamond Jubilee, which is being carried out under the supervision of Mr. Frank E. Carroll, Chairman of the Committee on Lighting and Decorating, was devised by Mr. W. D'Arcy Ryan, Director of the Illuminating Engineering Laboratory of the General Electric Company.

Mr. Ryan needs no introduction to Californians, as his illumination of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition is well remembered. Since then he has planned the lighting of many pageants and expositions, including the last one at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. So that when Mr. Ryan says that the lighting for the Jubilee will equal in most respects and exceed in many anything previously exhibited, the visitor to this wonderful demonstration certainly has something to anticipate.

The Path of Gold, famous the world over, will be resplendent in a new glory. Twenty thousand colored lamps and miles of garlands and colored bunting will adorn all of the lighting standards from the Embarcadero to Tenth Street. Welcome signs will greet the visitors at the Ferry and at the railroad station at Third and Townsend, and all the streets in the business section of the city will be canopied with streamers of flags.

Union Square, the heart of the retail section, will be surrounded by the lighting standard decorations, and in the square there will be an exceptional lighting feature. Six massive torchieres, probably the largest ever built, will adequately illuminate this entire area. These standards will be forty feet in height and will each have 37 flame-shaped and tinted globes.

The greatest concentration of lighting features will be at the Civic Center. Entering from Fulton Street one will be greeted by a vista of unequalled magnificence. For the first time, San Franciscans will see the real beauty of the public buildings about this square, for they will all be brightly illuminated by floodlights and banner standards concealing hundreds of lamps. These banners, which will serve as festive decorations by day, will be illuminated transparencies at night, depicting by a series of scenes the early history of California.

This wonderful vista will be seen through a scintillating arch of 40,000 Nova-gem Jewels, "El Arco de Brilliantes," which will span Fulton Street at the entrance to the Public Library. Twenty-four powerful arc searchlights will be used in its illumination. Flanking the arch on both sides will be huge urns or cauldrons belching forth colored steam.

As a background to this inspiring spectacle will rise the brilliant dome of the City Hall with three revolving searchlights in its lantern and a fan or scintillator of 20 beams of constantly changing colors in its rear.

The two fountains in the Civic Center have been converted into two panchromatic illuminated fountains which will be radio controlled. By tuning in on a station in Los Angeles or any other part of this country, it will be possible to control both water and the lights by the sound of the voice or by a musical number from these distant stations. And the spectators will be able to witness this marvelous feat by the aid of two huge loud-speakers that will carry the radio programs to everyone in the Civic Center.

These are only the main illumination features. The details, such as the lighting of all flags, trees, shrubs, etc., have not been overlooked. Chinatown will have an attraction as never before, for it will be lighted by a system of the most novel and beautiful electroliers, truly Chinese in design, that has ever been installed anywhere. The lighting of the Path of Gold will take another step on its journey to Twin Peaks and will now terminate at Valencia Street.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9th
ADMISSION DAY PAGEANT PARADE

10:00 A. M.—The Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West and the Citizens' Committee of California's Diamond Jubilee have united in adopting the suggestion of the portrayal of California's history spanning the centuries from its legendary period to the present time.

The parade will follow chronology, and it has been the ambition of the factors making this spectacle to leave no important incident unpictured. Each historic period is ushered in with an official banner of satin in Jubilee colors, carrying the definition and dates. It will contain not less than 100 handsome floats, depicting not only the historic march of events, but California's wealth of production in forest, mine, orchard, valley and industrial life. Marching units associated with the moving pageant are to use, as much as possible, the costumes of the period which they represent.

The wardrobes of the costumers of the Pacific Coast have been denuded for this purpose, and the headquarters of California's Diamond Jubilee Citizens' Committee and a staff of famous float constructors and artists, have given intimate attention to every detail in making this parade as authentic as the pages of our history may allow.

The parade will be formed and will move under the directions of Grand Marshal Harry W. Gaetjen, assisted by James A. Wilson as Chief of Staff; Chairman of the Parade Committee, Chas. A. Koenig, as Chief Aide.

LINE OF MARCH

The parade will start at 10 o'clock A. M. from the Embarcadero and Market Streets; going west on Market to Fulton; west on Fulton to Larkin; north on Larkin to McAllister; west on McAllister to Polk; south on Polk to Grove; east on Grove to Market; west on Market to Fell; west on Fell to Van Ness; north on Van Ness to Turk and disband.

Diamond Jubilee Souvenir Coin

THE national government, appreciating the historical importance of the Diamond Jubilee, declared by Act of Congress that three hundred thousand souvenir half dollars should be struck off to commemorate the event. The Jubilee Committee arranged with Jo Mora, the famous California sculptor, to make the designs for the coins and his designs were accepted by the government. The face of the coin represents a miner panning out gold and the reverse carries a design of a grizzly bear. The souvenir half dollars were coined at the San Francisco mint.

Chinatown Plans Decorations and General Participation in Jubilee

THE residents of the Chinese Community in San Francisco rejoice with others in the celebration of California's Diamond Jubilee.

This group of residents and adopted sons of California have participated in many other of California's celebrations, and their parts were proclaimed as being the most colorful and picturesque. In this important event they hope to excel their display of the past years.

Their community, better known as "Chinatown," will be gayly decorated with the official colors of the Jubilee, and their main thoroughfare—Grant Avenue—will be aligned and illuminated with beautiful lamps of Oriental design installed for the Jubilee by the progressive merchants and property owners of Chinatown and California's Diamond Jubilee Committee. The standards are said to be the most unique and impressive thus far seen in the history of community lighting and will furnish an inspiration well worthy of a trip to this charming section of San Francisco, if for no other reason. The many Association Buildings, thus illuminated and the silhouette created against the darkness of the night will form a most amazing and gorgeous sight.

On the evening of the twelfth, they will participate in the electrical pageant with many floats bedecked with beautiful Oriental maidens, and designed by the artistic minds of local Chinese talents. Their division will be led by the Cathay Band, a musical organization composed of young American citizens of the Chinese race, will be arrayed in silk costumes. The floats following will convey to the spectators the important events taking place in the early days of the Chinese in California. They will bring to memory the lure of the gold discovery; the part played by the Chinese in the reclamation of the rich tule lands and the completion of the Central Pacific railroad in 1869, which was required to be completed by Act of Congress; the recollection of the Burlingame Treaty of 1868, which was negotiated to establish the principle of reciprocity, that is, to secure the same 'privileges, immunities and exemptions' for Chinese in other countries as other aliens enjoyed there, and as the subjects or citizens of other countries were granted in China.

Other floats with much color will be in line, but not yet decided at the time of this writing. The parties making possible for the demonstration by the Chinese Community are: the Chinese Consul-General, Honorable Ko-liang Yih; the Chinese Six Companies; the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and the Native Sons of the Golden State. The Committeemen are: Mr. Lee Quen, General Chairman; Mr. Gee On, Vice-Chairman; the Chairmen of Committees are: Mr. Chin Dook Jow, Mr. Lee Wong, Mr. Louie W. Ton, Mr. T. Wong, Mr. John Seid and Mr. Peter H. Wong.

The Order of Native Sons of the Golden West

By Fletcher A. Cutler, Grand President.

THE Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West is celebrating its Golden Anniversary co-incidentally with the Diamond Anniversary of the State. For fifty years the Order has been engaged in various activities and they may be enumerated as follows: In preserving the identity of ground and buildings where historic events occurred, by erecting monuments and placing plaques with properinscriptions thereon; in perpetuating memories of one of the most wonderful epochs of the world's history, the days of "49"; in maintaining fellowship endowments at the University of California at an expenditure of $3000 per annum which enables two students proficient in historical research work to visit foreign countries and in their archives to discover material bearing on the discovery and settlement of the Pacific Coast and the Southwest; in stimulating the study of California history in the University of California and the various High Schools of the State; in dedicating newly erected High Schools and Grammar School and the presentation of the Flag of our country and the State (Bear) Flag to the student body of these schools; in the public observance of Admission Day in the various cities of the state, when in pageantry there are depicted eventful epochs of the state's history; in co-operating with Civic improvement and public enterprises; in supporting state and federal legislation, having for its object the interest of the state at large; in consistently advocating everywhere and all the time that this land so favorably located, so generously bestowed, so happily populated, so divinely blessed, shall be maintained and perpetuated even as it was dedicated by the blood and the bone and the grit of Pathfinder, Pioneer, Settler and Miner as the abiding place of the white race.

Our membership is recruited from every section of the state; the sons of California who, loving the state, clinging to its traditions, endeavor by word and action to maintain the high ideals typified in the lives of the men and women of the long ago; ever pressing onward and keeping pace with the growth and development of the state intensely interested in the preservation of its great scenic wonders as revealed in stately forests, fragrant valleys, silvery streams, falling waters and emerald lakes. The voices of thousands of our members from San Diego, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Ventura and Santa Barbara mingle with the answering cry of the sturdy sons of Mendocino, Humboldt, Siskiyou, Shasta, and the Sierras and reverberating down through pleasant valleys and blossoming fields sounds the glad acclaim of Native Sons, living, working and caring for their community and State.

State pride, state loyalty, and state building has ever marked the advance, the expansion, the power of the American Republic. The very system devised by the Fathers comprehended a plan whereby national growth and national strength would be commensurate with state growth and state strength. The Louisiana purchase pushed the western boundary line of the United States to the Rocky mountains and toward the great Mississippi basin there started that caravan of the best in American life, the men who slowly but surely and fearlessly were to extend the western frontier until the Occident faced the Orient.

The reclamation from forest and desert and plain of states and commonwealths forms the most thrilling part of American history. The clearing of the wilderness and the dotting of those clearings with homes were evidences of an advancing civilization. The appearance of the Church, the School and the Court House, the transplanting of American institutions with their resultant blessings indicated the coming of a new people in a new land. There were deeds of heroism and daring exploits by brave men who with enduring faith and firm resolve shaped the destiny of the American people and assured the extent of the American domain. They pressed on, toiled on until at last they stood on the crest of the Sierras, triumphant, resplendent and confident as they looked upon a shore line that met the surge of a mighty deep. It was the forward movement of human progress that carried the center of civilization from the Mediterranean across the Atlantic and thence over mountains, unbridged streams and stretched plains to the Pacific Coast where it stands today, looking hopefully, anxiously, courageously across the waters to meet the great problems of the future.

The scenes enacted upon California's soil form no small part of the wonderful story, and in this, the seventy-fifth anniversary of California's statehood passes before us in an unfolding panorama, vivid as with the life of yesterday. We are with the early navigators braving the perils of the sea in their frail craft, charting routes and finding ports for those to follow; with Serra and Lasuen as they dedicated the soil to Christian enterprise; with Portola as he stood on the San Bruno hills wrapped in wonderment as he gazed upon an unknown arm of the sea holding within its embrace the secrets of a mighty future; with Anza and his band of Pilgrims who faced the dangers and hardships of a labored journey across the parched deserts of Arizona to San Diego and thence to the Presidio where they founded the first settlement on that Bay; with Fremont at old Sonoma as he fearlessly and valiantly flung to the breeze a defy against foreign aggression and foreign invasion; with Marshall at Coloma as he exposed the golden treasure which initiated California on her glorious career, fortified the government with credit and prestige among the nations of the earth; with pathfinder blazing the trails for the Pioneers to follow; with the men of "49" with their hopes, their ambitions, their fraternity; with the men at Colton Hall who under the flag that Sloat raised wrote the Constitution of a free state, accompanied by a demand that the thirty-first star upon the azure blue of our national emblem should be represented by our own California.

As the last scene vanishes another appears as a reverent benediction—the California of today! Appealing as she was in her pristine splendor, now a thousand fold enhanced with her great cities teeming with myriads of people, her valleys and countryside populated by a people dwelling in peace, plenty and contentment; opulent in wealth of minerals, forests, gushing oil wells, fruitful orchards, golden harvests, slow-moving herds and flocks, manufactures of mill and factory, trade and commerce stimulated by resources in every stage of development, her soil responding to the magic touch of Nature's offering supplied by aerial treasuries of snow. Every section of the State generously and unselfishly contributing to its ever increasing fame. Finally we behold a State glorified by the dominating spirit that pervades every thought and action of its citizenry—it is the spirit of the West!—the great heritage transmitted from the past, the spirit of cheer, courage, faith and optimism of a loving, grateful patriotic people.

The Native Sons with unfaltering trust, and constant loyalty and devotion, greet California on her seventy-fifth anniversary with protestations of pride, fealty and deep affection. She will always be to them as Seward declared her to be, the "Youthful Queen of the Pacific," youthful in spirit, youthful in beauty, youthful in ambition.

ORDER NATIVE DAUGHTERS OF THE GOLDEN WEST

By Sue Irwin, Grand President

TO the little city of Jackson belongs the honor of being the birthplace of the noble Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, the great sisterhood of native-born California women which has grown from its humble beginning in the foothills of Amador County to an army of earnest workers for the civic and social development of our wonderful Western Empire on the shores of the Pacific.

This distinctively Californian organization was founded in Jackson on Saturday, September 11, 1886, as the result of a call issued to native-born California women by Miss Lilly O. Reichling, to whom the Grand Parlor has accorded special honor as the Founder of the Order.

At the first meeting, held in Pioneer Hall, Jackson, on the above date, thirteen names were signed to the list of women enrolling themselves as members of the Order.

On September 25, 1886, Ursula Parlor No. 1, was formally instituted with a membership of nineteen. The Charter remained open until October 29, 1886, at which time the Charter List, bearing thirty-three names was formally closed.

From the time of the organization of the Order until June, 1887, seventeen Parlors were instituted in the State by the officers of Ursula Parlor No. 1. Among the Parlors instituted were Minerva Parlor No. 2, and Alta Parlor No. 3, both in San Francisco.

The first Grand Parlor convened in San Francisco, July 1887, with Tina L. Kane presiding. At this meeting a permanent organization was formed and a Constitution, for the government of the Parlors, adopted.

At the present time there are 150 active Parlors in the State, with a membership of about 15,000.

MILLS COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIP

Among the completed projects and one of which the Order may feel justly proud, is the Mills College Scholarship which was established at the 1914 Grand Parlor, Oakland, in honor of Mrs. Alison F. Watt, the then presiding Grand President, and a graduate of Mills College.

The motion to create the Scholarship was introduced by Past Grand President Dr. Mariana Bertola, and seconded by Past Grand President Clara K. Wittenmyer, also a graduate of Mills College.

The sum specified for the Mills College Scholarship Fund at the time of its establishment was $5,000.00, which amount accrued to about $6,000.00. Of this sum $2,000.00 is invested in Pacific Gas & Electric Co., stock, yielding 7½ per cent on amount invested; $3,000.00 in S. W. Straus Co., bonds, paying 6½ per cent; $972.16 in the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., paying 7½ per cent. The dividends from these investments furnish the yearly amount for the Scholarship which at the present time is about $390.00 per year.

Miss Esther Caukin, a charming young woman, and a Charter member of James Lick Parlor No. 220, San Francisco, was the first successful applicant for the Scholarship, graduating with honor in May, 1924.

Miss Hazeldell Werner was awarded the Scholarship July, 1924 for four years.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS HOME

The Native Daughter Home was established in 1892, and placed under the management of a Board of Relief, authorized by the Grand Parlor 1892.

At the Grand Parlor June, 1919, the Native Daughter Home now located at 555 Baker Street, became the property of the Grand Parlor, and at the present time is managed by a Rotating Committee of twenty-one members of the Order, and is maintained by an annual assessment on the membership of the Order.

THE NATIVE SONS AND NATIVE DAUGHTERS CENTRAL COMMITTEE ON HOMELESS CHILDREN

In 1910 the Native Sons and Native Daughters began the scientific bringing together of the homeless child and the childless home, realizing that children properly placed in carefully selected homes where they could "belong" to somebody, meant success for the future citizenship of their State.

In 1907 Fairfax H. Wheelan of Pacific Parlor No. 10, N. S. G. W., inspired the members to action, and began to enlist his fellow-members in a great standing army ready to protect all children at all times, whatever the nationality, nativity, creed or color and for the first time in the history of a fraternal organization had imbedded in their Constitution and set forth in their By-Laws a plan for carrying relief outside of their ranks for the general good of society. Mr. Wheelan reasoned that the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, with their scattered membership, covering a large area of the State, would be in a position to assume full responsibility for the investigation and the selection of homes and the placing and supervision of children physically fit and legally free for adoption. The overwhelming response of the Native Sons and Native Daughters to the appeal of the homeless child sustained the soundness of his judgment.

Until the day of his death, March 26, 1915, Mr. Wheelan never relaxed his efforts to perfect the system, and the founding of the work for the children will prove a lasting memorial. The work is not confined to children allied in any way with the Native Sons or Native Daughters or to applicants who are members of the Orders. No attention is paid to fraternal affiliation of natural parents or foster parents.

Chas. M. Belshaw, an ardent worker, whose death was a serious loss to the children's work, and Mrs. Emma Lillie Humphrey, the first secretary, were outstanding Native Son and Native Daughter members of the Central Committee from the day it was organized. Charles A. Murdock, representing the Protestant Orphanages and now Vice-Chairman of the Central Committee, and Lucius L. Solomon, representing the Jewish Societies, were members of the first committee.

The governing body consists of ten members: three representing the Native Sons; three representing the Native Daughters; one representing the Associated Charities of California; one member representing Protestant orphanages and institutions; one representing the Catholic organizations and institutions and one representing the Jewish organizations and institutions. The personnel of the present committee is Henry G. W. Dinkelspiel, Chairman; Chas. A. Murdock, Vice-Chairman; Judge Frank J. Murasky, Harry G. Williams, Chancellor K. Grady, of the Native Sons; Sue J. Irwin, Grand President of the Native Daughters, Catherine E. Gloster and Ariana W. Stirling, Past Grand Presidents of the Native Daughters, representing the Native Daughters; Rev. Michael R. Power, representing the Catholic organizations, and Lucius L. Solomon representing the Jewish organizations. Mary E. Brusie, Secretary; Ada L. Swortzel, Assistant Secretary.

The members expend between $25,000 and $30,000 annually. The funds are derived from public entertainments with the attendant valuable publicity given on the 8th day of October of each year and designated as "Children's Day" of the Orders. Since the work began $163,192.33 have been donated by the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West.

2,718 children have been placed for adoption—1,392 girls and 1,356 boys.

5,885 applications for children have been received.

Over 1,500 applicants are constantly on the waiting list.

The Native Sons and Native Daughters accentuate the fact that they do not just "dump" the children, and then lose sight of them in their anxiety to find homes for the next twenty-four that come to them. Every child who is placed in a foster home is carefully watched in the vicinities where there are Parlors. This supervision is undertaken by the members who are on the spot and in a position to know that the children are receiving proper care and are in a healthful environment.

The Native Sons and Native Daughters look around for a childless fireside, either city or country, pick out a little one from the stork's nest for the parents whom he will "match," and proceed to make both child and home happy. Good moral homes for all children legally free and physically fit, whose parents cannot be made to feel their responsibility, is the welfare work of the two Orders. Just so long as there are children who need a home, the philanthropy of the Native Sons and Native Daughters knows no barriers of race, creed or color. In the North, in the South, in the central part, children are allotted throughout the State, to fill the vacant places in homes the "stork flew over."

NIGHT PARADE

8:00 P. M.—What is expected to be the crowning achievement in parade history in Western America will be exemplified in the closing feature of California's Diamond Jubilee. The parade takes in not only military. civic, fraternal and many national units, but will present at least fifty floats, constructed for this occasion alone, in a most artistic and convincing manner.

The great features that have moved along the parade lines in the Labor Day and Admission Day spectacles will be preserved for re-entry in the monster presentation. There will be more and better floats in the parade on this night than have ever been seen in any night assemblage elsewhere.

The marching bodies will be kept under 30,000, and these will be in characteristic costumes of the twenty-four nations represented by their people who have adopted California. The picturesque uniforms of fraternal and beneficial associations, the evolutions of fantastically garbed drill teams, and the general riot of Jubilee colors in every known hue, will lend their enchantment to this scene.

During the course of this parade, thousands of pounds of colored fire, in Jubilee hues (red, yellow and green), from over 100 high buildings along the line of march, will be burned. The general illumination, intensified by scores of vivid spotlights, crowned by this gorgeous overhead illumination, will transform San Francisco into a magic city.

At the conclusion of the parade, thousands will go to the closing Ball at the Civic Auditorium, while other thousands of merrymakers will turn the city into a Mardi Gras, and California's Diamond Jubilee celebration will have gone down into history.

The parade will be formed and move under the direction of Dr. T. B. W. Leland, Grand Marshal, assisted by Charles A. Koenig, Chief Aide; Thomas F. Finn, Dr. Howard M. McKinley; and Malcolm A. Fraser, Aides-de-Camp; Aides to Grand Marshal.
